This report examines the major trends in women's employment and unemployment over the past two decades in Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development member countries. Employment and unemployment trends in the labor force by sex are first considered. The report next examines the growth of the female labor supply and the trends in the labor force participation of women with an analysis of the factors responsible for these developments. Barriers to youth employment. Youth do not have the ease of entry into the workforce or the work stability that their parents experienced. There is also greater demand by employers for soft skills as well as qualifications. Home > Starting employment > Hiring > Hiring young people > Barriers to youth employment. Increasing numbers of casual jobs - growth in casual contracts and part-time work mean many young people are in entry-level jobs, or in jobs for a short period of time. A decrease in job quality - the jobs available to young people may not give them promotion or development opportunities. Many jobs across a lifetime rather than one career path - it's likely young people may have up to three careers in their lives.
