The American West to 1850

This course explores the history of places that have been called the American West, focusing on the period before 1850. We start with the era of American Indian occupation; continue with European invasion and the eventual creation of two new occupying nations, Mexico and the United States; and end with the U.S. conquest in the nineteenth century. At the outset, we consider the varied and changing world of Native North America before the arrival of Europeans, and then watch as that land and those peoples became the object of Spanish, French, Russian, and English imperial designs. As we enter the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, we see how European incursions gave way to the hopes and dreams of new nations, particularly Mexico and the U.S., and also of increasingly powerful native peoples, such as Lakotas, Cheyennes and Apachos, and Comanches. After studying the trails and trades that brought more and more newcomers from the U.S. into lands claimed by Mexicans and Indians, we approach the end of the semester with a key convergence of transformative events: the U.S. conquest of the Mexican North, the discovery of western gold, and the west Coast arrival of Chinese immigrants. We study all of this from a number of perspectives, using styles of analysis developed by environmental, economic, political, cultural, social, ethnic, and gender historians. Throughout, we attend to the aspirations of a variety of western peoples, including those of North American, Latin American, European, African, and Asian origin or descent, and we look at how such varied aspirations both clashed and coalesced, sometimes producing new peoples and new economies. We study all of this through lectures, discussions, scholarly books, primary sources, feature films (Black Robe and Lone Star), and three episodes of the 1996 documentary film The West.

Course requirements

1. General: Faithful attendance in lecture and discussion sections; prompt completion of weekly readings; respectful participation in class discussions. Films shown both in and outside of class also require attendance; you’ll be responsible for their contents in exams, and there is also a written assignment based on films screened (see below). Films screened outside of our regular class meeting time can be viewed independently; we will discuss their availability in class.

2. Film Journals: Each of you should keep a journal about your intellectual reactions to the documentary and feature films that will be screened for this class (keeping such a journal will help jog your memory about the film content when exam time comes around). You will have one opportunity to turn in a 1-2 page journal entry or extract that discuss the films and their relationship to readings and lectures. You do not need to focus equally on all of the films screened, but your journal entry should discuss at least two of the films or film episodes, and it should relate the films to other course materials. Here are the three options for your journal entry assignment:

   1) Write a 1-2 page journal entry in which you discuss at least two episodes of the documentary film The West and their relationship to other course materials (readings, lectures, and/or other films).

   2) Write a 1-2 page journal entry in which you discuss both feature films, Black Robe and Lone Star, and their relationship to other course materials (readings, lectures, and/or other films).
3) Write a 1-2 page journal entry in which you discuss at least one of the episodes of the documentary film The West and one of the two feature films, Black Robe or Lone Star, and their relationship to other course materials (readings, lectures, and/or other films).

Your film journal entry is due on at the beginning of lecture on Tues. May 2. It can be computer-generated or handwritten. It won’t be graded, but it will be marked using a +, ✓, - system, and this mark will be used to help determine your course participation grade.

3. Papers: You will write two papers for this class, a brief 2-page paper on assigned primary sources, and a longer 5-page paper on one of the three single-author books assigned to the class as a whole. Both papers are designed to give you hands-on experience with the building blocks of history, that is, original primary source materials.

   a. First paper: Two pages, double-spaced. This paper will give you a chance to consider in depth some of the primary source readings from The West in the History of the Nation, those reprinted in chap. 1, “Cultures in Conflict: First Encounters,” chap. 2, “Colonization: Religion and Economy in Frontier Regions,” and chap. 3, “The Late Seventeenth Century: Rebellion on Two Frontiers.” You’ll choose at least two of the primary sources from any of these chapters and analyze the different points of view of the Spanish and/or French and/or English conquer and Native responses represented by each. Your paper will be due at the beginning of lecture on Tues. Feb. 7. Papers must be computer-generated, double-spaced, with standard one-inch margins. Late papers will be accepted without penalty only if you negotiate an alternative due date with your teaching assistant at least 48 hours prior to the due date specified here. Otherwise, late papers will drop by one-half of a grade for each day that they are late.

   b. Second paper: Five pages, double-spaced. You’ll receive detailed guidelines for this paper early in the semester. This paper will be written individually, but there will be teamwork involved in your initial research. For this paper, you’ll use as your starting point one of the three single-author books assigned to the class as a whole: White, The Middle Ground; Reséndez, Changing National Identities; or Johnson, Roaring Camp. We’d like to have roughly equal numbers of students writing on each of these books. So during the second week of class, we’ll ask you to designate your top two book choices, and then we’ll divide the class into three similarly sized groups, each one assigned to a different book. We’ll make every effort to assign you one of the two books you’ve chosen. The three mega-groups (each assigned one of the three books) will have time in class to organize themselves into smaller research teams (we suggest 2-4 students on each team). Each research team will then plan a research strategy for identifying primary source materials relevant to the book assigned. These primary sources should be found in libraries on campus. (Note that on Thurs. Jan. 26, we will have a librarian come to teach us how to find such materials.) The research teams from each mega-group will report on the primary sources they’ve found during the class period in which we will be discussing the book assigned to that mega-group (Middle Ground, Thurs. Feb. 16; Reséndez, Changing National Identities, Tues. April 4; Roaring Camp, Tues. April 25). Meanwhile, each individual should be deciding on one or two of the primary sources identified to use in the preparation of his or her individual paper. The actual paper, then, will be both a review of the book and an exploration of how the author uses primary sources to make a historical argument. You’ll use the source(s) you’ve chosen to demonstrate in detail how the author makes use of primary materials. Your paper will be due at the beginning of lecture a week after the book you’ve read is discussed in class (Middle Ground, Thurs. Feb. 23; Reséndez, Changing National Identities, Tues. April 11; Roaring Camp, Tues. May 2). Papers must be computer-generated, double-spaced, with standard one-inch margins. Late papers will be accepted without penalty only if you negotiate an alternative due date with your teaching assistant at least 48 hours prior to the due date specified here. Otherwise, late papers will drop by one-half of a grade for each day that they are late.

4. Exams: There will be two take-home essay exams, a Midterm and a Final. We will not give out exam questions prior to the dates specified here under any circumstances. The Midterm questions will be handed out at the end of lecture on Thurs. Feb. 23, and your answers must be handed in at the beginning of lecture on Thurs. March 2. There will be no lecture on Tues. Feb. 28, but the professor and teaching assistants will be available in the classroom to answer any questions you may have about the Midterm. The Final questions will be handed out at the end of lecture on Tues. May 2, and your answers must be handed in between 5:05 and 7:05 p.m. on Fri. May 12--that is, during the regularly scheduled final exam period for this course. There will be no lecture on Thurs. May 4, but the professor and teaching assistants will be available in the classroom to answer any questions you may have about the Final. Midterm and Final exams must be computer-generated, double-spaced, with standard one-inch margins, and they may not exceed the page limits established. You are to work individually and independently on these exams; evidence of collaboration, plagiarism, or other academic dishonesty will result in automatic failure. Late exams will not be accepted (no exceptions made for computer difficulties or transportation problems).

Grades

Your final grade will be determined using the following formula:

- Course participation: 20%
- First paper: 10%
- Second paper: 25%
- Midterm exam: 20%
- Final exam: 25%

From time to time, you may be given the chance to enhance your course participation grade by attending a campus event relevant to the history of the American West and writing up a one-page response paper that relates that event to course content. These events will be announced in class and/or over the class email list. If you want extra credit for an event that has not been announced in class or over the class email list, please check with Professor Johnson to make sure that the event that interests you is sufficiently relevant to course content before writing a response paper and turning it in.

Readings

The following four books are required for all students. They are available for purchase at the University Book Store, and are on reserve at College Library in Helen C. White Hall:

The following book is not required, but it is ever-so-highly recommended. Those of you who purchase it at the University Book Store or elsewhere may well find it to be a book you’ll be happy to have on your bookshelf for years to come. Still, it is quite expensive, so you might consider either sharing with a classmate or using one of the copies on reserve at College Library in Helen C. White Hall. None of the assignments in this book are actually required, but once you start reading them, you might get hooked. This is no boring compendium of useless facts, but rather a curious collection of brief, readable essays on an extraordinary range of topics written by some of the leading practitioners in the field of western history. Was Daniel Boone saint or sinner? What are the roots of contemporary Chicanas and Chicanos? Before Wisconsin was known for cheese, for what was it known (a question for out-of-state students)? Where were the seven cities of gold, or Cíbola? How did Lakota people become known as the Sioux? Where did the Santa Fe Trail begin and end, and who and what traveled along it? Who were the first people of African descent in what we now call the West? Who invented scalping? Who cried on the Trail of Tears? Why were mountain men hooked on beavers? Why does so much of the Midwest look like a checkerboard when you fly over it? Who was Lola Montez, and why were they saying such awful things about her? Why is Texas so weird? You’ll find the answers here:

The American Old West was a period of history of western North America (usually the Western United States, though many times including the Canadian prairies, northern Mexico, the South and sometimes even the Midwest). Most often the term refers to the late 19th century, between the American Civil War and the 1890 closing of the frontier. Terms Old West and Wild West refer to life beyond the settled frontier. While this terminology could logically place the setting as far back as the American colonial Presentation on theme: "American West Terms (1850 to 1890)." Presentations on this topic: 1 American West Terms (1850 to 1890). 2 Manifest Destiny. 3 Great Plains (Great American Desert). The American West in American Memory THE WEST Historians and the West Frederick Jackson Turner The Frontier Thesis The New Western Historians. Similar presentations. About project. See more ideas about american history, history, american revolutionary war. The next topic in our series of six Unit Studies for American History (plus the Presidential Election Unit Study and we also plan to end with an additional unit on World War II) is based on The Early 19th Century. I seem to be on a roll this week blogging about some of our (somewhat) recent history and geography studies, so I thought now would be as good a time as any to add this post too! Go West Across America with Lewis and Clark Game. Join Lewis and Clark on an expedition across America in this interactive game. Learn the histories of famous and lesser known people—Sacagawea, John Ordway, George Drouillard, and Pierre Cruzatte. United States - United States - The United States from 1816 to 1850: The years between the election to the presidency of James Monroe in 1816 and of John Quincy Adams in 1824 have long been known in American history as the Era of Good Feelings. The phrase was conceived by a Boston editor during Monroe’s visit to New England early in his first term. The American Revolution and the early federal republic. Prelude to revolution. The tax controversy. The growth of the West, encouraged by the conquest of Indian lands during the War of 1812, was by no means regarded as an unmixed blessing.
