Sabbatean Frankism is covered in "Everything You Need To Know About…". Sabbatean Frankism is based on the lives of messiahs: Sabbatai Zevi (left) and Jacob Frank (right). Other Subjects Covered: ETs, Perception Control and Sabbatean Frankism. David deals with PC in a blunt and very humorous way, calling it out for what it really is: psychological warfare. Throughout this section and the entire book, David stresses that we need to look way way beyond our physical identity - man, woman, black, white, Asian, Hispanic, European, gay, straight, rich, poor - if we want to understand and solve our problems, because identification with these things is leading us down into more fragmentation and division (making it easy for the NWO manipulators to divide). Every other week, Jo Whiley celebrates the best in new fiction, while a local book club based in the UK is tasked with giving their verdict. In 2019, we've had some exceptional book releases; novels that have entranced, thrilled, and broken our hearts. Here is a selection of Book Club highlights, picking out some of the most talked-about novels of 2019 so far. What is it about? Claire Adam’s debut novel deals with the conflict and drama that comes from raising a large family; the difficulty in pleasing everyone, and the increasing guilt that stirs when feeling like you’ve let someone down. Based in rural Trinidad, it follows father Clyde Deyalsingh, his wife Joy, and their two twin sons, Peter and Paul - both of whom differ drastically in terms of character and ambition. Describes different kinds of losses, including the death of a loved one, the end of a love affair, and the loss of virginity, and suggests such coping mechanisms as the natural grieving process, the finding of a creative outlet, and getting help from others.
